DIVISION OF CULTURE & HISTORY

From the Editor:

Unable to visit the Archives and History Library due to distance or inclement weather? Explore the Archives' extensive Web site at <http://www.wvculture.org/history>. Even those of you who have used the Web resources before will find something new and interesting in a "Featured Item" on the main Web page, changed every weekday, and will have an opportunity to learn something new about West Virginia people, places and events in history. Visit our "Online Exhibits" by clicking the link on the homepage or going directly to <http://www.wvculture.org/history/exhibits.html>. The exhibits combine carefully researched articles with wonderful images. Need a reference question answered? Give us a call at (304) 558-0230, ext. 168. Need a document for your family history? Write us a letter using the instructions found by hitting the "Research Request" link. We are here for you.

Dr. Maslowski to Present "A Primer on West Virginia Archaeology" on January 4

Dr. Robert Maslowski will present "A Primer on West Virginia Archaeology" at the monthly Tuesday evening lecture in the Archives and History Library on January 4, 2011. He will cover the highlights of prehistoric and historic West Virginia archaeology from the Paleo-Indian period (10,500 BC) to AD 1900 and will discuss classic artifacts, excavations, and current interpretations. Prehistoric archaeology topics covered will include the St. Albans site, late Archaic shell middens, the development of pottery, the mound builders, the Grave Creek Stone, corn agriculture, and who the Native Americans were and where they went. Maslowski will discuss several historic archaeology topics as well, including Revolutionary War forts, Civil War sites, historic cemeteries, industrial archaeology, and slavery.

Bob Maslowski holds a PhD

in anthropology/archaeology from the University of Pittsburgh and is a retired archaeologist with the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Huntington. He has done extensive archaeological work in the Ohio Valley and has also worked in Trans-

Pecos Texas, Israel, Cyprus, Vietnam, and Laos. He was the executive producer of three archaeology films, Red Salt & Reynolds (2003), Ghosts of Green Bottom (2005), and Secrets of the Valley: Prehistory of the Kanawha

12th Annual Hoot Owl on April 1

Mining Your History Foundation (MYHF) again presents the very popular Hoot Owl night for an all-night research session in the West Virginia Archives and History Library. This year's event begins at 6:00 p.m. on Friday, April 1, and concludes at 8:00 a.m. on Saturday, April 2. In addition to the opportunity to use Archives and History Library resources, well-known genealogists from around the state will be available to discuss your research with you. Behind-the-scenes tours of the non-public areas of the Archives will be conducted. Refreshments will be available in the Archives conference room. If you don't think you can stay awake all night, bring a pillow and a sleeping bag to catch a nap in a vacant corner. Participation is limited to 50. Registration is $25 by check or money order payable to MYHF and must be postmarked by March 18. Late registration, if space is available, is $35. Mail to MYHF, P. O. Box 6923, Charleston, WV, 25362-0923. For more information contact Joe Geiger, (304) 558-0230, joe.n.geiger@wv.gov, or Wes Cochran, (304) 422-1774, wescochran@juno.com.

(2010), which will air on West Virginia Public Television December 22, 2010, at 9:00 p.m. Maslowski teaches Appalachian courses at the Marshall University Graduate college and is the current editor of the journal West Virginia Archaeologist.

All Archives and History workshop and lecture sessions are free and the public is invited to attend. On January 4, the library will close at 5 p.m. and reopen at 5:45 p.m. for participants only. Advance registration for the workshop is not required, but is encouraged to help plan seating arrangements and supplies for the session. To register in advance for this event or any Archives and History event covered in this newsletter, contact Robert Taylor, library manager, bobby.l.taylor@wv.gov or (304) 558-0230, ext. 163. Participants interested in registering by e-mail should send their name, telephone number and the name and date of the session. For additional information, contact the Archives and History Library at (304) 558-0230.

Archives 2nd Annual Showcase

The second annual West Virginia Archives and History Showcase on December 6, 2010, was a wonderful evening for both staff and attendees. Many documents, rare books, autographed books, posters, manuscripts, videotape clips and more from the Archives collections were enjoyed by participants. To view additional photographs of the event, visit <http://www.wvculture.org/history/workshops/showcase2010.html>.

Draper Collection Presentation

An attentive audience listened to Jaime Simmons as she discussed how to use the Draper Collection of microfilmed letters and manuscript material. More photographs of the evening may be viewed at <http://www.wvculture.org/history/workshops/wkshp120710.html>. The Draper Collection microfilm is available in the will add births for 1910 and state death records for 1960. County birth records are withheld 101 years and state death certificates are withheld 51 years from the current year, with new records added on January 1st of each ensuing year. If you are unfamiliar with the database or are a beginning genealogist, we recommend reading the explanatory article linked from the main VRR page to learn more about West Virginia vital records and the database itself. At the end of the article you will find links to "Quick Guides" that give an overview of the type of records available in West Virginia and where to find them.

The original Quick Guides appeared in the West Virginia Archives and History News issues in the fall of 2007, with the VRR article first appearing in 2005 with update articles periodically over the years, but the versions posted on the Web site are updated annually. Separate

Archives and History News articles discussing birth, death and marriage records in more depth can be read online or in the libraries of various genealogical and historical societies, as well as public and university libraries throughout West Virginia. (These three articles have not been updated, so refer to the current Quick Guides for correct dates.)

Resources for West Virginia History Education

Archives and History has a new Web page with information and suggestions for anyone teaching West Virginia history. Both regular and homeschool teachers will find links to other portions of our Web site that will assist in the teaching of many aspects of West Virginia history, as well as quizzes to both learn and demonstrate knowledge of West Virginia history (particularly helpful for preparing for the Golden Horseshoe test and History Bowl competition). Lesson plans and exercises are available for the study of John Brown and the Harper’s Ferry Raid, as well as West Virginia statehood. Visit highlighting a Civil War timeline featuring major events of the era and the importance of preserving Civil War resources. The public is invited to request a copy of the free calendar while supplies last. Each month, the calendar focuses upon a different aspect of the Civil War in West Virginia. To request a free copy of the calendar, write to:

West Virginia Division of Culture and History, 2011 Calendar, The Culture Center, 1900 Kanawha Blvd. E, Charleston, WV 25305

You may also call Conni McMorris at (304) 558-0240, or e-mail her at conni.l.mcmorris@wv.gov. The 2011 calendar was funded in part by the National Park Service, U.S. Dept. of the Interior.

[Excerpted from a Division press release, December 3, 2010.]

NOTE: You may also pick up the calendar in person in the West Virginia Archives and History Library while supplies last. For mailed copies, please request from SHPO as described above.

History Day Display Space Applications Due February 3

History and genealogy-related societies and organizations that wish to have displays for History Day at the Legislature in the Capitol on February 24, 2011, have until February 3 to postmark, e-mail or physically deliver their applications for table space. The form is available on the Archives and History Web site at <http://www.wvculture.org/history/historyday/historyday2011announcement.html>. The display space registration form can be submitted via e-mail this year for the first time. For more information, contact Mary Johnson, mary.e.johnson2@wv.gov, or Joe Geiger, joe.n.geiger@wv.gov, or call either one at (304) 558-0230.

Cherokee Language Instruction Books and CD's

The Archives and History Library now has two books with CD's available to learn the Cherokee language. The books originally came with audio cassettes that Dick Fauss, audio-visual archivist, converted to CD for use in the Archives Library media center in the Reading Room. The sets are as follows:

- Intermediate Cherokee, Module One: by Gregg Howard, Sam Hider and Durbin Feeling, 1997. This has an instruction book in workbook form and one audio cassette.
- Cherokee Made Easy: by Prentice Robinson, 1992. This has a small instruction booklet and three audio cassettes, so it is more of a "listen and learn" type of instruction.

There are two main dialects of Cherokee, one spoken by those

Grave Creek Mound Mentioned in Old History Textbook

From History of the United States Designed for Schools, by Egbert Guernsey, 6th edition, 1849, pages 23-24:

Foreign travelers complain that America presents nothing like ruins within her boundaries; no ivy-mantled towers, nor moss-covered turrets, as in other quarters of the earth. Old Fort Putnam, on the Hudson, rearing its lofty decayed sides high above West Point; or the venerable remains of two wars at Ticonderoga, upon Lake Champlain, they say, afford something of the kind. But what are mouldering castles, falling turrets, or crumbling abbeys, in comparison with those ancient and artificial aboriginal hills which have outlived generations, and even all tradition—the workmanship of unknown hands! Here are skeletons of strange forms, unknown to the Indians; preserved bodies, fortifications, immense mounds and tumuli, which form their number, obscurity of origin and magnitude, are to be ranked among the wonders of ancient things. It remains for America to tell the story of her antiquities—to arouse her virtuosi and antiquarians to the search; for here, beyond a doubt, are traits of nations coeval with ancient, and probably with the oldest works of man, this side the flood.

These mounds and fortifications are generally found on fertile bottoms, and near rivers. Several hundreds have been discovered along the valley of the Mississippi; the largest of which stands not far from Wheeling, on the Ohio. This mound is fifty rods in circumference, and ninety feet in perpendicular height. It is filled with thousands of human skeletons, and was probably situated near some great city, and was a general deposit of the dead for some ages—where they were placed in gradation, one layer above another, till they reached the top.

Judging from the large trees growing on the mound, amid old and decayed timber covered with mould and leaves, showing them to be of the second or third growth, it must have been at least twelve hundred years since it was deserted.

Permission to reprint articles from West Virginia Archives and History News is granted, provided:

- (1) The reprint is not used for commercial purposes, and
- (2) the following notice appears at the end of the reprinted material: Previously published in West Virginia Archives and History News, [Volume and issue numbers], [Month, Year], based in North Carolina, and one spoken by those who settled in Oklahoma and other western states. Both of these sets are in the western dialect. Patrons are welcome to listen to the CD's in the Reading Room. Even if you do not want to actually learn Cherokee, or if your family is more closely oriented to the eastern band, listening to the spoken language in any dialect can be very interesting, particularly if you have Cherokee heritage.

New Library Rules Reminder

If you have not visited the Archives and History Library in the past year, you may not be aware of rule changes instituted in January 2010. With the addition of free lockers for patron use immediately outside the Archives Library door, patrons are allowed to bring only legal-style pads, loose papers and regular pencils into the room, as well as personal laptop computers (mouse and cord allowed, but not case). Patrons will fill out a brief registration form on their initial visit since the rules change, and all patrons will sign the guest book once daily upon each visit. Patrons still may wear or bring in their coats, but all purses, backpacks, briefcases, totes, plastic bags and other baggage must be placed in lockers. Personal books, notebooks, envelopes, folders, etc. are no longer allowed. Only regular #2 pencils are allowed, since the metal parts on mechanical pencils can make holes in paper. A patron may return to the locker as needed to review any information in notebooks, file folders, personal books, etc., which had to be left in the lockers. To view the complete rules, visit our Web site at <http://www.wvculture.org/history/rules/libraryrules.html>, or hit the "Visitors" link on the Archives
